Lent falls very early in 1904, and, as Lent falls early, the few weeks of the reason remaining after January list will doubtless be very gay.

The winter weather in Richmond is more severe as a rule during January and February than during December, so the brightness and cheer of drawing rooms and cosy nooks where the debutantes in pretty gowns are ready to welcome visitors will seem doubly attractive.

The thoughts of the society folk generally turn southward early in the New Year, and it is predicted that Florida and other South Atlantic resorts will be very full. Cruising in Southern waters with congonial yachting parties is said to be quite a fad of the present moment, and one likely to be followed by many who have the leisure, means and inclination to carry it out.

Golden Weddings,
Richmond society was much interested last Monday in the golden wedding celebration of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Hickson, whose marriage took place at the home of the bride in this city December 1st, 1853, the Rev. Dr. Jeter at that time being the officiating elergyman.

Mr. and Mrs. Hickson removed from Richmond to Canada, and thence to Bernudas. From the Bernudas they returned to Danville, and within the last year they have come back to Richmond. They have come back to Richmond. They are now established at No. 1812 Fork Avenue, where the golden wedding reception was held Monday afternoon from 3 to 6 F. M.

The reception was preceded by the together from several States by a final desire to de honor to the anniversary.

The house was appropriately and artistically decorated in holly, mistletoe, running cedar and white flowers, white carnations and white roses, making parlors and halls fragrant and bride-like.

The bridal couple stood to receive the congratulations of their relatives and friends in the front parlor.

Mrs. Hickson was gowned in black velvet, worn with duchess lace and diamonds. Her flowers were bride's roses.

Assisting her were her daughters—Mrs. Jas. I. Pritchett, in Champagne trepe and pearls.

Among the many lovely gifts received by Mr. and Mrs. Hickson was a purse containing $500 in gold, given by the eldest son, Jos. L. Hickson, of Minneapolis, Minn.

The afternoon reception was followed by an elaborate wedding dinner, given at the Jefferson Hotel. A private diningroom was decorated for the occasion. The table was handsomely arranged with a centerpiece of white carnations and roses, fringed with malden hair forns. It was, indeed, a pleasing sight to see such a crowd of smilling faces as were assembled around the table. After all were seated, the Rev. John Y. Downman read an interesting letter received from Mr. Joseph L. Tynck, of Danville, Va., the brother of the bride, which contained the Hickson yell. This started the family going, and as the wine began to flow, the members yell. This started the family going, and as the wine began to flow, the members of the family warmed up to the occasion and gave toast after toast to the bride and groom, also to the other members of the family. It may safely be said that Mr. and Mrs. Hickson are among the happlest and youngest of couples who have celebrated golden weddings in this city.

Those present to dinner at the Jefferson were: Mr. Jas. L. Hickson, Mr. Jos. R. Hickson, and Miss Dorothy Hickson, of Minneapolis, Minn.; Mr. and Mrs. Jas. I. Pritchett, of Danville, Va.; Mr. and

The Woman's Club.

The parlors of the Woman's Club present a very attractive appearance, decorated, as they are, in Christmas greenery, the fiash of holly berries showing redly against the polish of mahogany.

Dr Whichester, of the Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., where he occupies the chair of literature, will give a lecture at the club to-morrow evening at £35 o'clock, his subject reverting to the Elizateth Age and Letters in England, with life at Ludlow Castle as its central thought. Mrs. Winchester will accompany her husband on his Southern trip. The Doctor is a man of great culture and calent, and his appearance at the Woman's Club is one of the most notable in the season's lecture course.

On the afternoon of December 31st Dr. Robert Herndon Fife, also of Wosleyan University, will give a lecture on "William Tell." Dr. Fife will reach Richmond next Tuesday and be the guest of Mrs.

R. T. Hunter while he is here. He has visited the club on a former occasion, when he described "Woman's Work in the German Universities." The pleasant interession he made then will bespeak a cord'al welcome for him this week.
